1985

Knowing that you are usually screwed up about things, I'll write this upside down in hopes that may be you'll be able to understand. It. Thank for being a heck of a friend through my first full year at Maumee (Yeah! [sarcastic]). Good luck through the Senior Year as we approach the Great Eight-Seven.

"over there has a good point. You are screwed up; but that's what makes you special. It's been real...

You know? But don't worry, we'll be friends for a long

LONG time, O.K.? Good!

Don't analyze this writing. Because... I am writing on a slant, on the floor, and in the hall whereas I am finding that it was a pretty stupid place to do it

O.K. Good! Bye!

Academics

From A to F, grades either make you an academic phenomenon or fatality. One may wonder how a measly letter can induce reactions ranging from euphoria to nausea; but pride and punishment, however, are not the only effects this alphabetic evaluation affords. Motivation is a very useful response that grades induce. Grades force you to dissect felines, frogs, and fetal pigs for science, encourage you to spend a minimum of five hours a night on geometric proofs that seem to offer no evidence, pressure you to read English novels that have not yet been translated into "Cliff Notes" and push you to study for Foreign Language quizzes, even though you continue to speak as if you have two tongues. Quite simply, grades stimulate you to learn. These devices have introduced you to people, places and things that most likely would not have been sought independently. Although grades are not always a true indication of your intellectual capacity, they usually provide an accurate reflection of your dedication and dependability. Grades give you the encouragement to reach your potential.

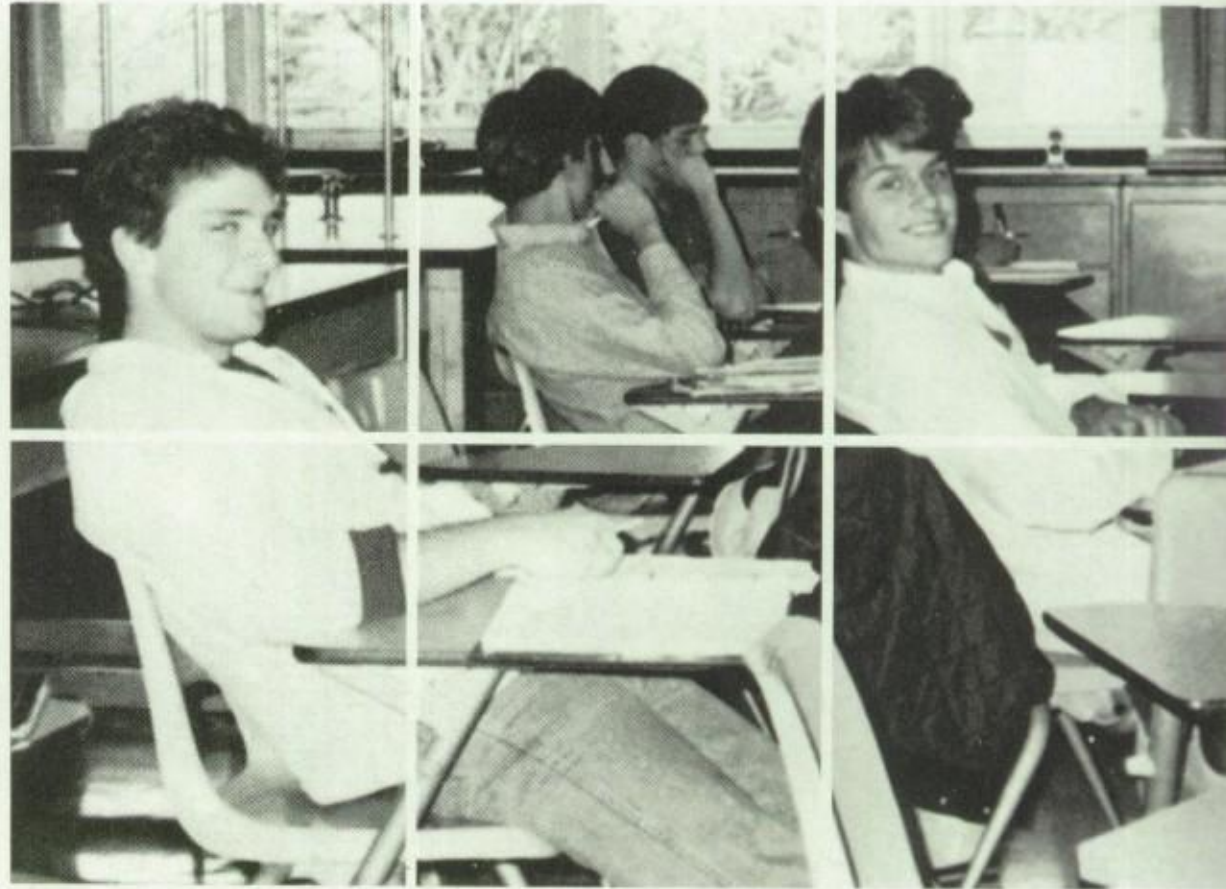

Weekends

's the weekend. Something called slumber is quickly wasting your day. At noon, nevertheless, your mother attempts to arouse you, thinking you might have been transferred to the twilight-zone. You then enter another dimension — the kitchen. Nuclear radiation must have vaporized all the food in the refrigeration unit, so you settle for indestructible products such as Twinkies and Tostitos. You advance into another room where a single monitor serves you as an electric eye to the outside world. Bored by uninteresting visual scans, you flip through your study manuals in order to review for a test to be conducted on the mission completion date of Monday. Suddenly, your inter-galactic communication mode buzzes. To your surprise, it's a companion craft inviting you to "invade their space." As for Sunday, you totally crash," for the end of the week has left you at weak ends!

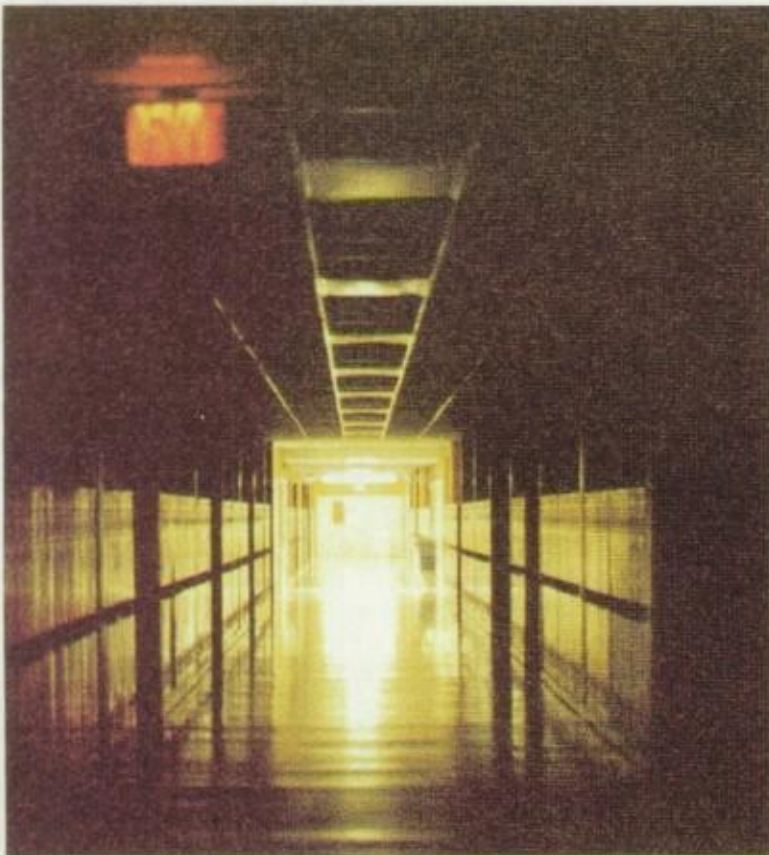

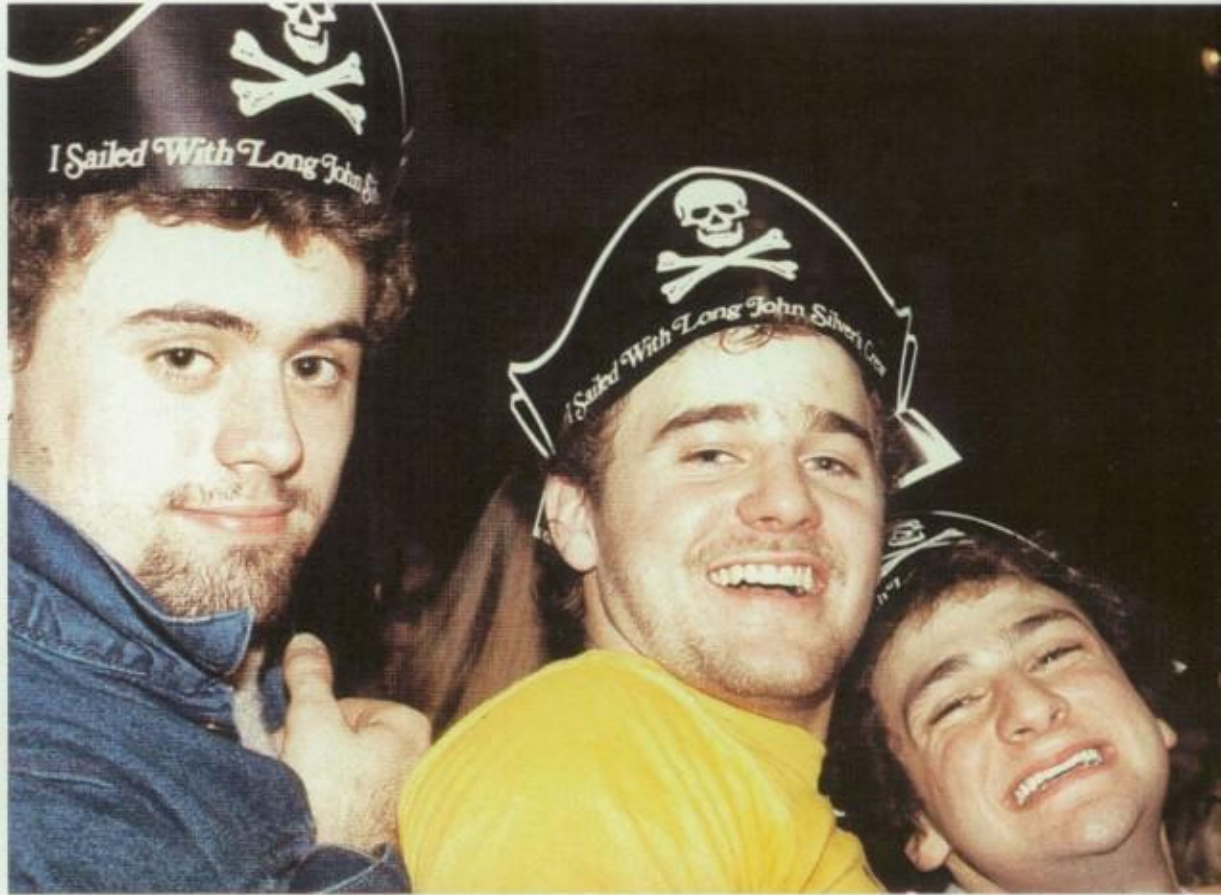

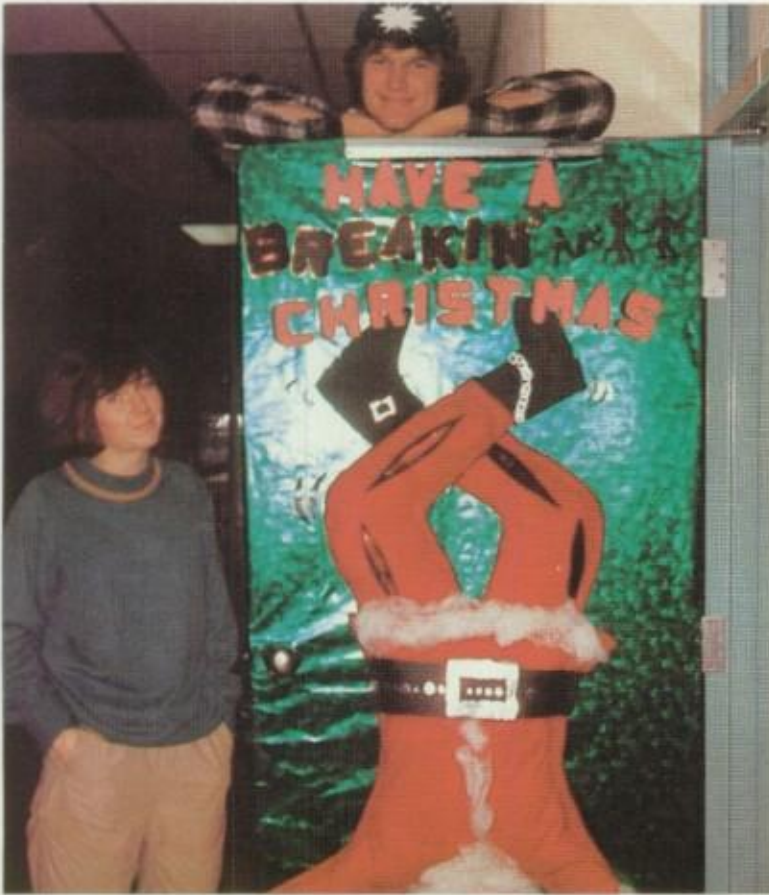

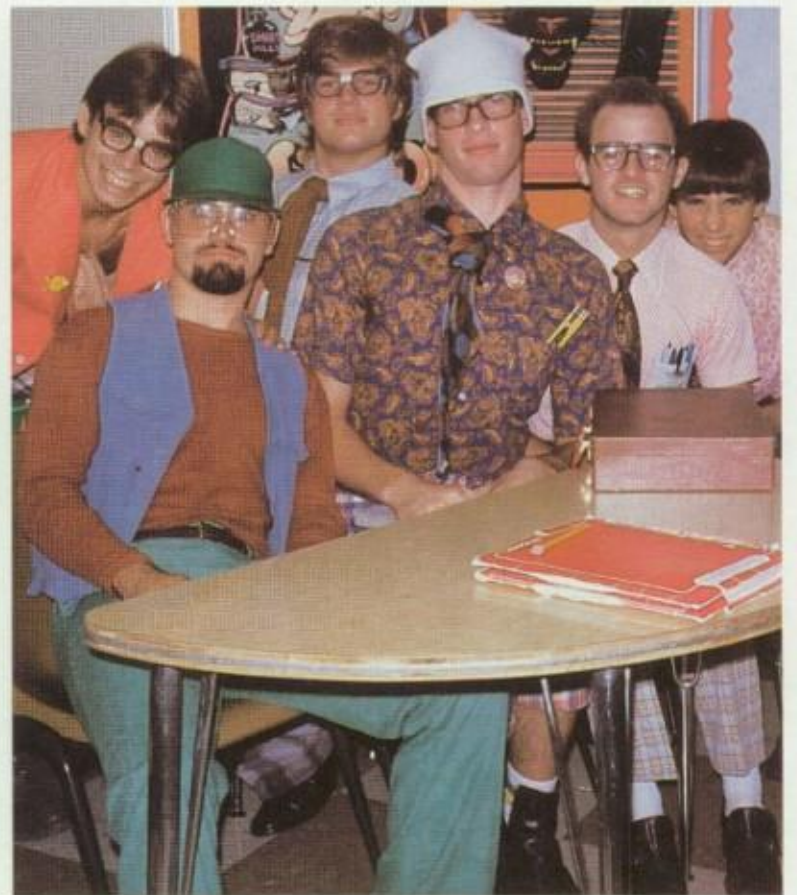

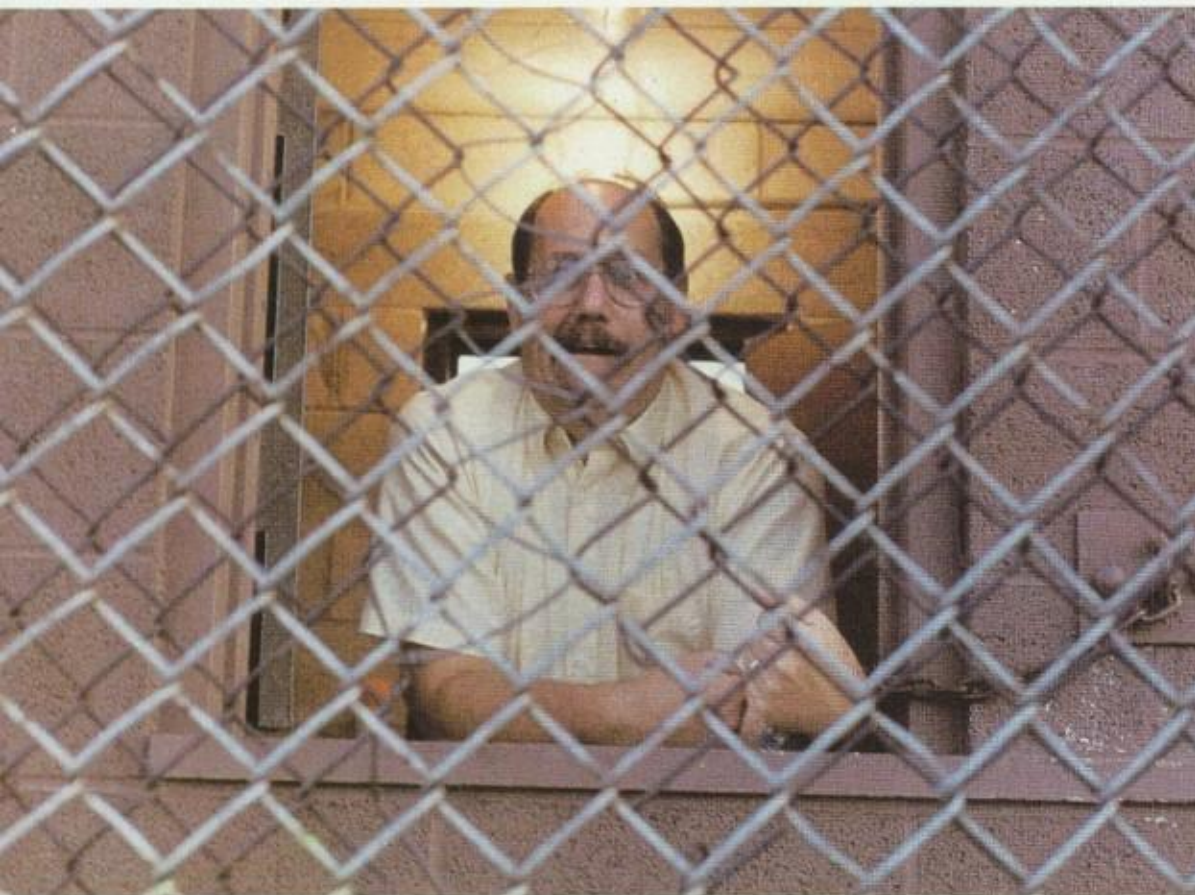

Friends

Friends can be likened to the old adage: "You can't live with them and you can't live without them." Friends can sometimes be the most irritating individuals inhabiting this planet. Remember when they . . . ask if your car's manufacturer was Mattel or Tonka . . . accidentally told the school's notorious bash-busters about your small party on a weekend . . . lost the sequined glove Michael What's-his-name personally gave you, or used your house to dispose of the extra rolls of toilet tissue following the football game? Moments like these can turn the delights of friendship into doubts. Nevertheless, true friendships rebound and are quickly revived with several kind words or gestures. Friendships should definitely not be ignored. After all, what other single source can offer free psychiatric help, non-interest loans, homework assistance, chauffeur service and entertainment opportunities?

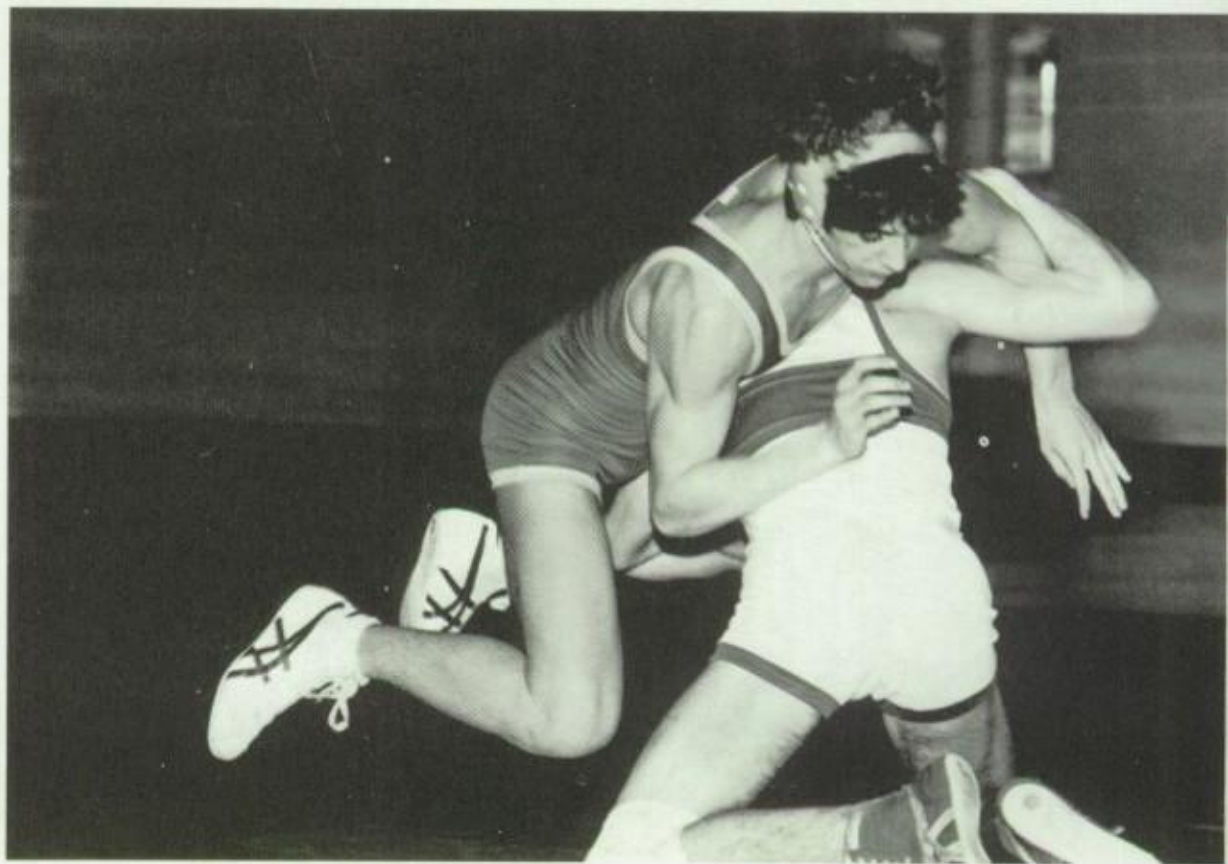

Hangouts

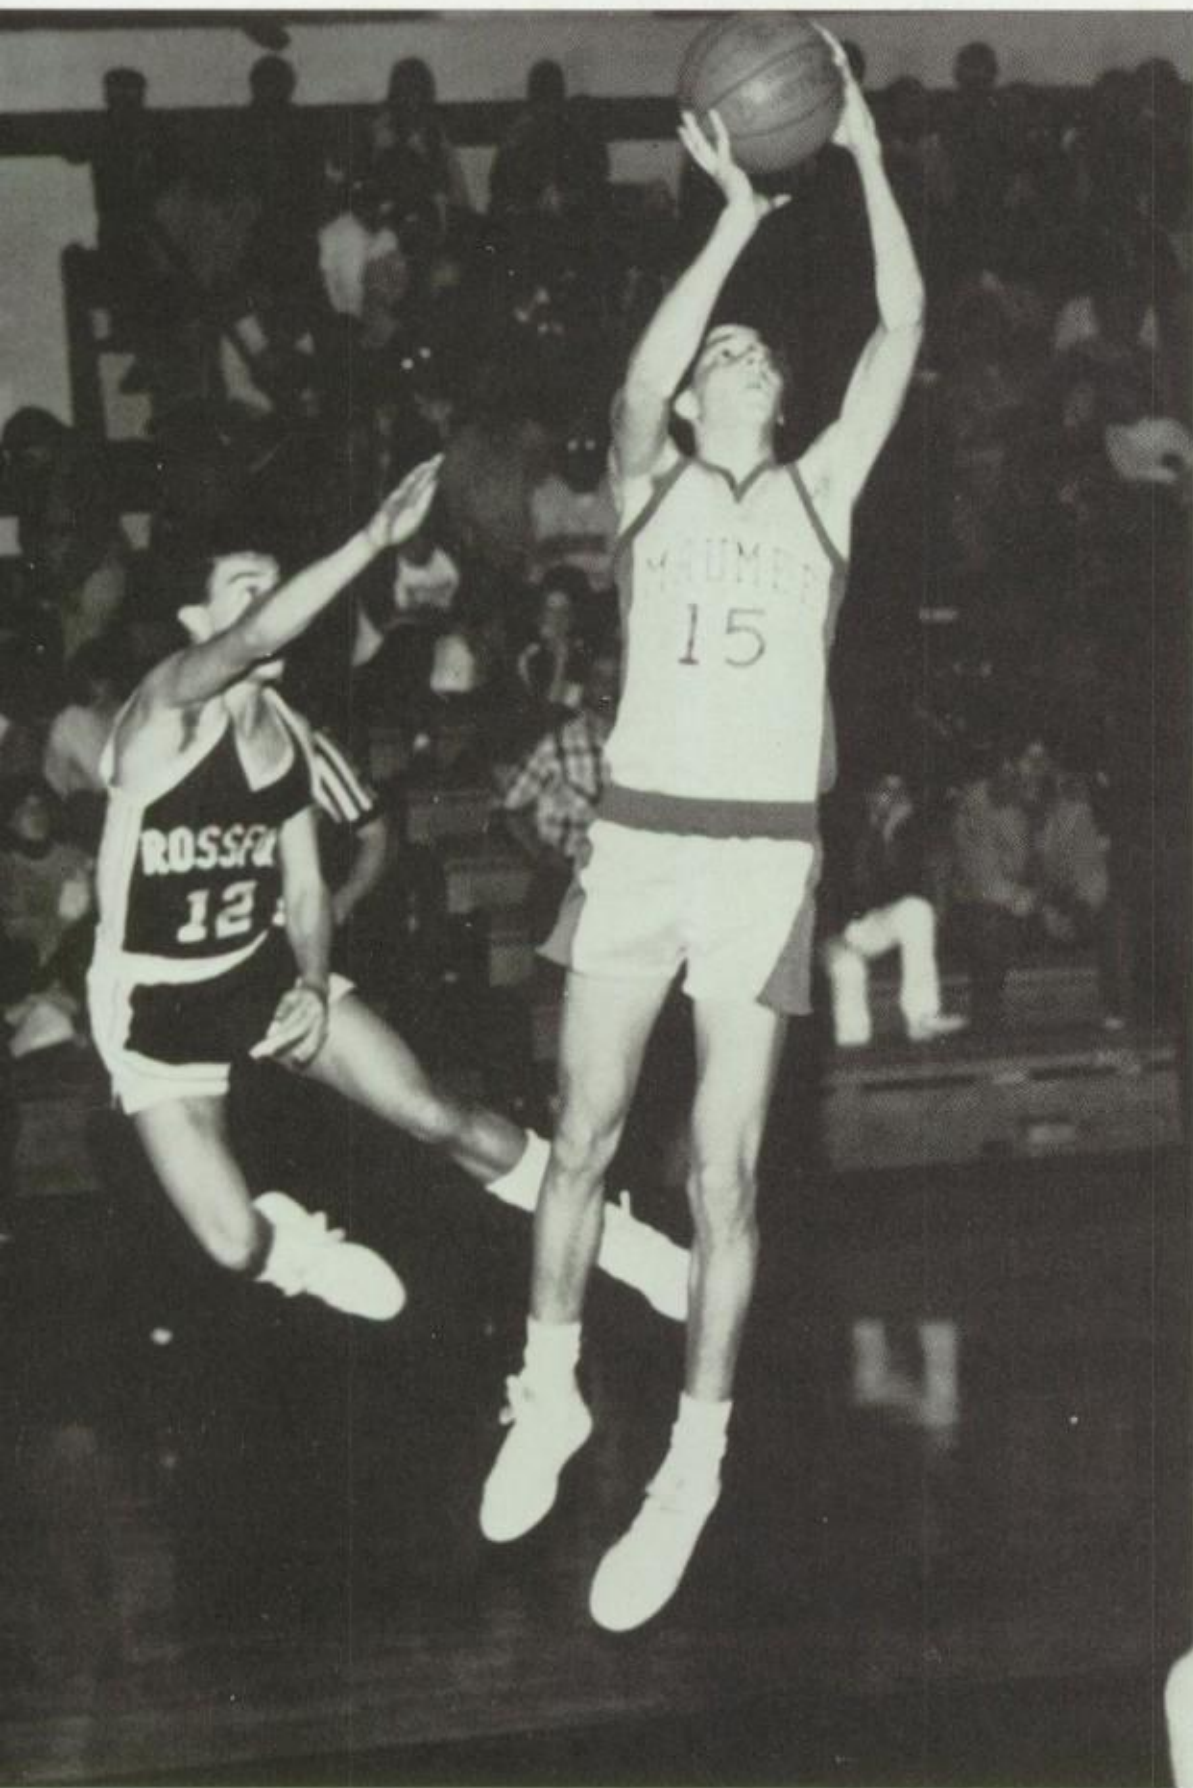

is Saturday night in Maumee. Homework, jobs and parents cease to exist. One is licensed to paint the town until the bewitching hour arrives. Showered, shampooed, blow-dried, and shining one sits by the phone in anticipation. A shrill ring signals the start of an exciting evening. When the party patrol swings by, everyone suggests a mission. Sometimes they report to McDonalds to get some food both for nourishment and for thought. Limited only by time and money, the crew narrows the options: staking out a movie at the Indoor, taking some target practice at Timbers, or conducting a search at the mall. After reviewing choices, the driver orders the crew into the car. Although conditions in the car are tight, the blaring radio eases the tension. If no one is at McDonalds, then the search goes on — to Little Ceasars, Southwyck, Burger King and if there is no action to be found at any of these hangouts then sometimes it's on to somebody's house.

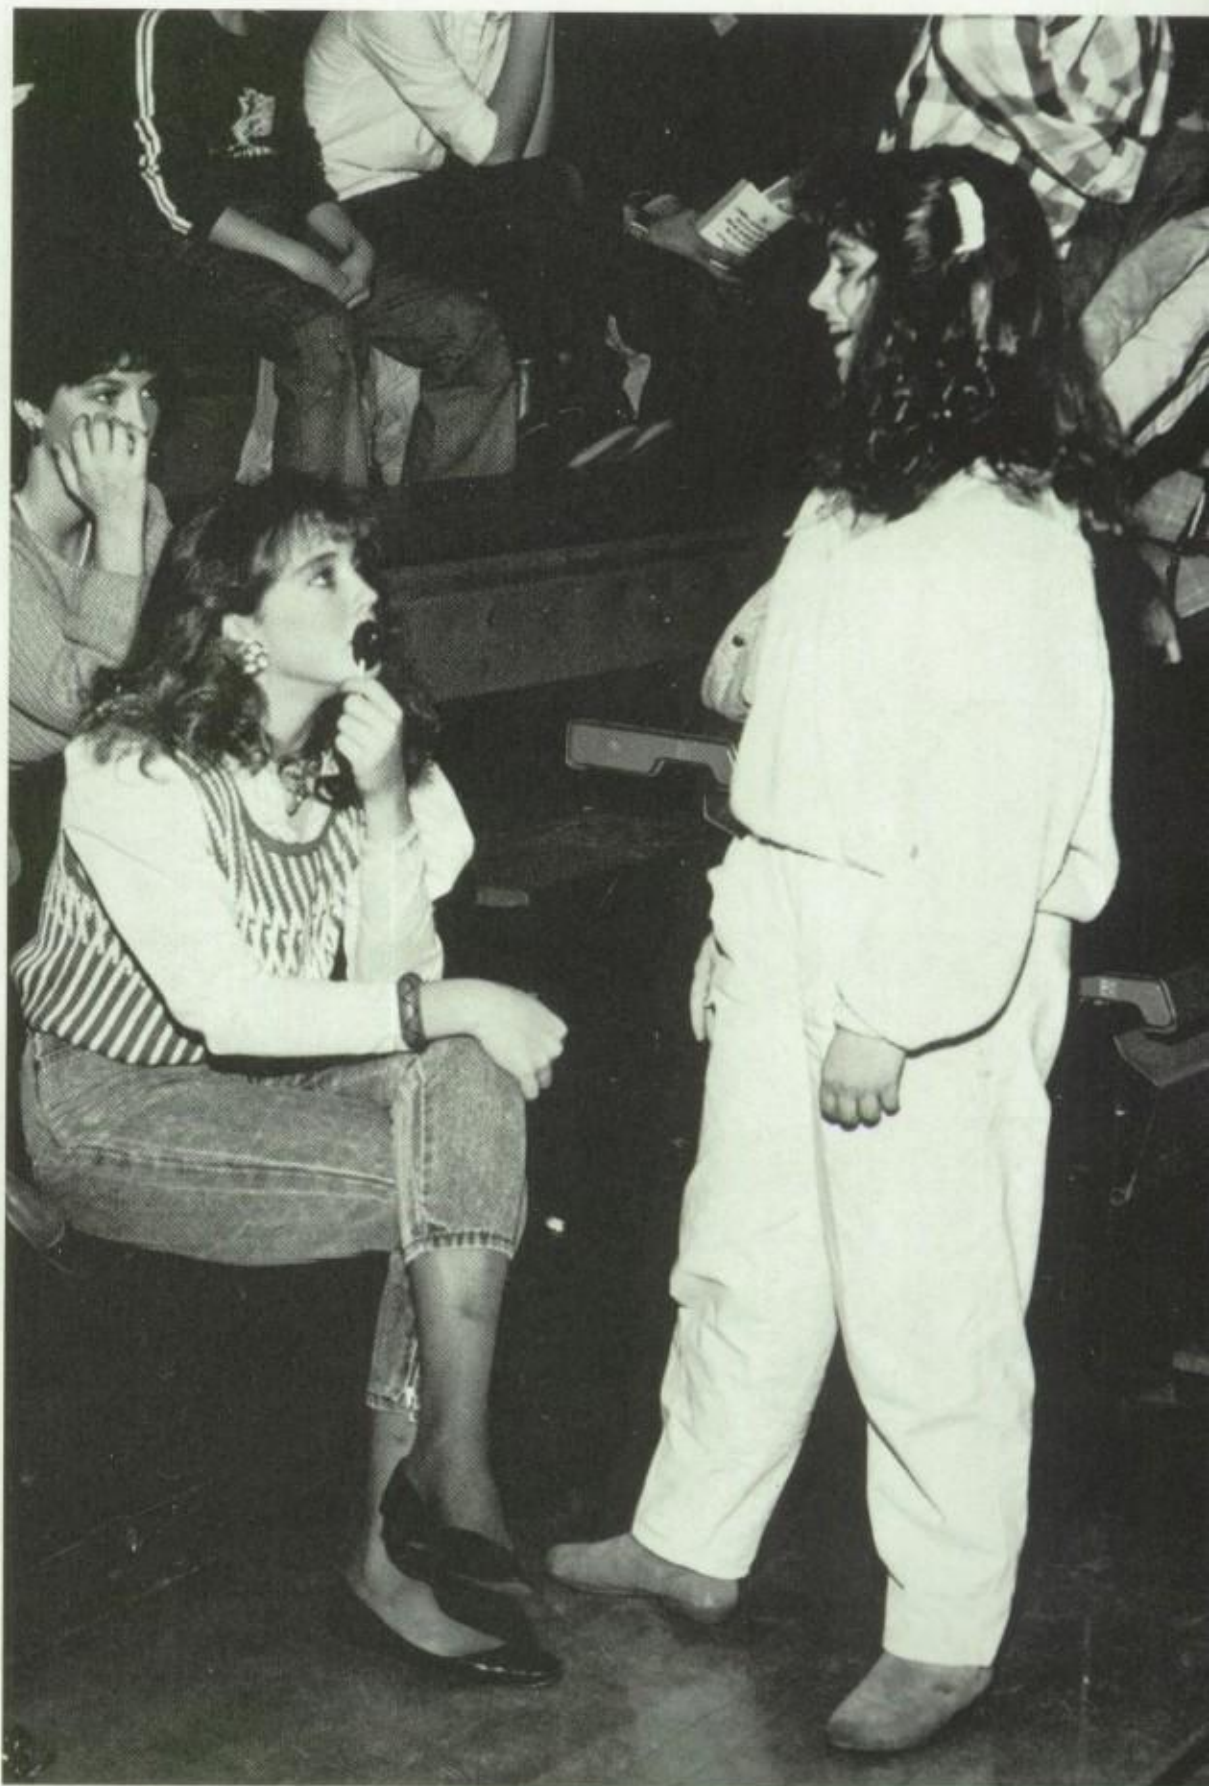

Sports and Fans

Bleacher creatures are nocturnal with their day usually beginning at 5:00 pm. Unlike other primates, bleacher creatures' hibernation extends from March through August. Upon awakening, they shed their common coats, and quickly regenerate a purple and gold covering. They scuttle out of their habitats when companions beckon them. Bleacher creatures travel in herds to gathering grounds to view warlike confrontations between opposing groups. Congregating in the bleachers, they implore the Almighty Panther to make their pack victorious. It is during this time that the bleacher creatures' entire emotional range can be observed; reactions directly correspond with the events occurring on the field or court. If their team falls victim to attack, the creatures release unpleasant growls. On the other hand they respond to triumphant moments by producing high pitched screams. They also hurl paper into the air to exhibit their exhilaration. In retrospect, bleacher creatures thrive on PRIDE.

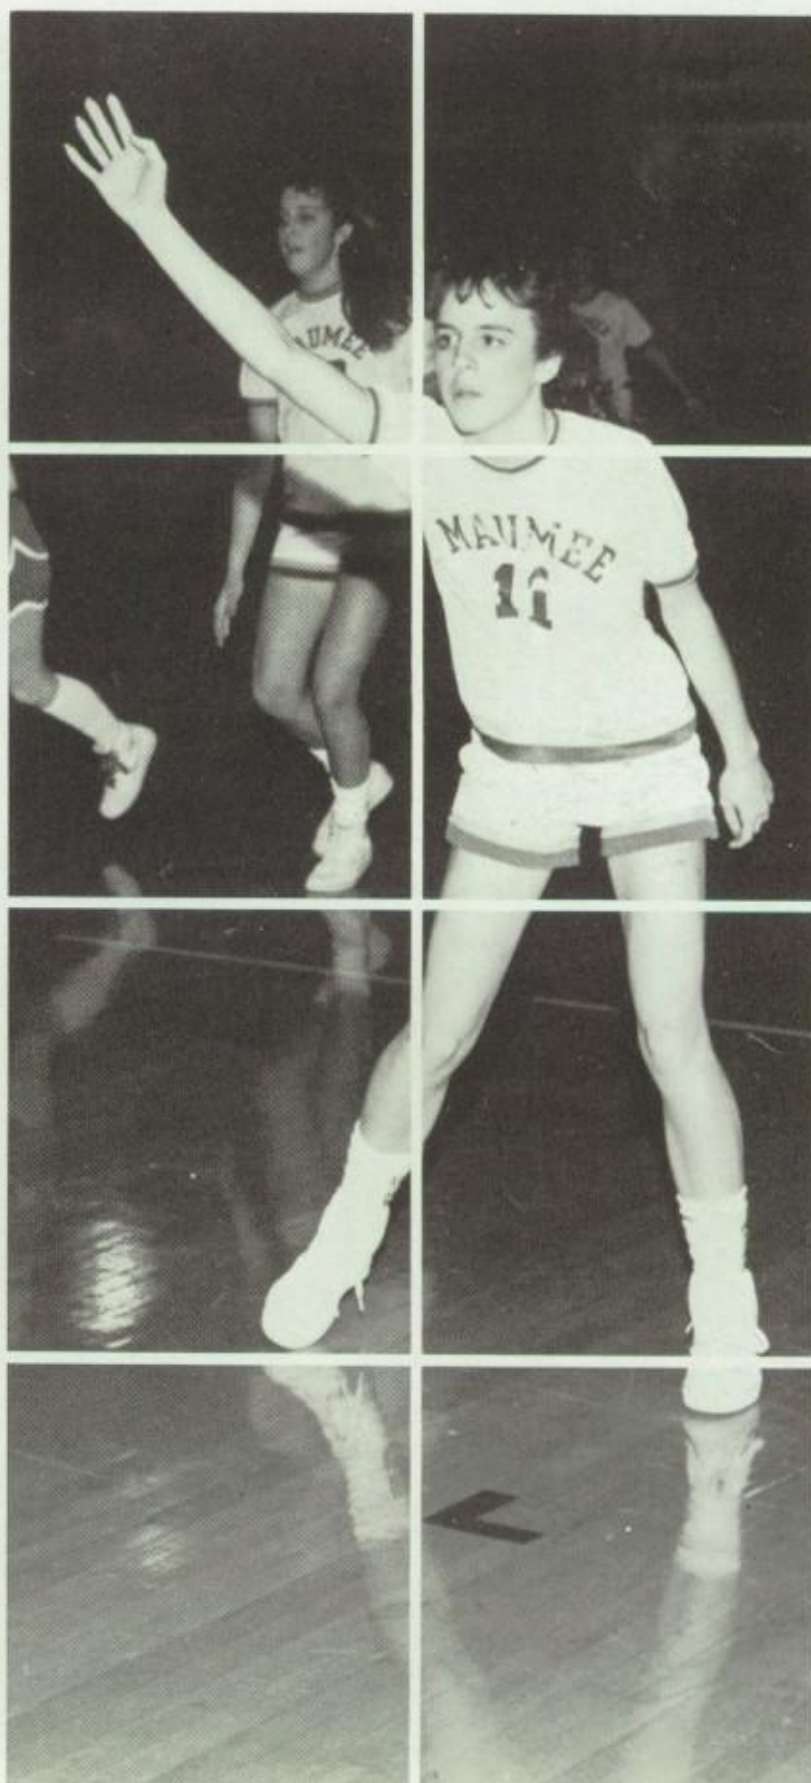

Up and Coming

Freshmen . . . who needs them? They are good at taking up precious space on the bus or in the bleachers. The freshmen are also superb at asking ridiculous questions: "Where's the auditorium?" or "Why can't we wear our walkmans during lectures?" An intellectual query like: "Where's the beef in the Maumee Macs?" is simply out of their realm. In addition, they treat the cafeteria jukebox, an old acquaintance they have encountered numerous times at pizza-outeries, as new discoveries. If Stephen King's next thriller movie requires zombies, he should consider filming at freshman self-scheduling day. For the most part, their vocal capacities are nil. Authoritative confrontations in pep assemblies leave many upper classmen believing that the freshmen are void of voice. Their major dilemmas concern nerve-gnawing issues such as locker size and distance between classes. Putting all sarcasm aside, freshmen supply the school, corridors, and classrooms, with fresh attitudes and ideas. Upon them is heaped the enormous responsibility of maintaining the Maumee High School's marvelous reputation. So, 1984-1985 Freshmen, the Maumee Yearbook Staff salutes you in your efforts to keep the Panthers a stride ahead of the rest.

The Class of 1985

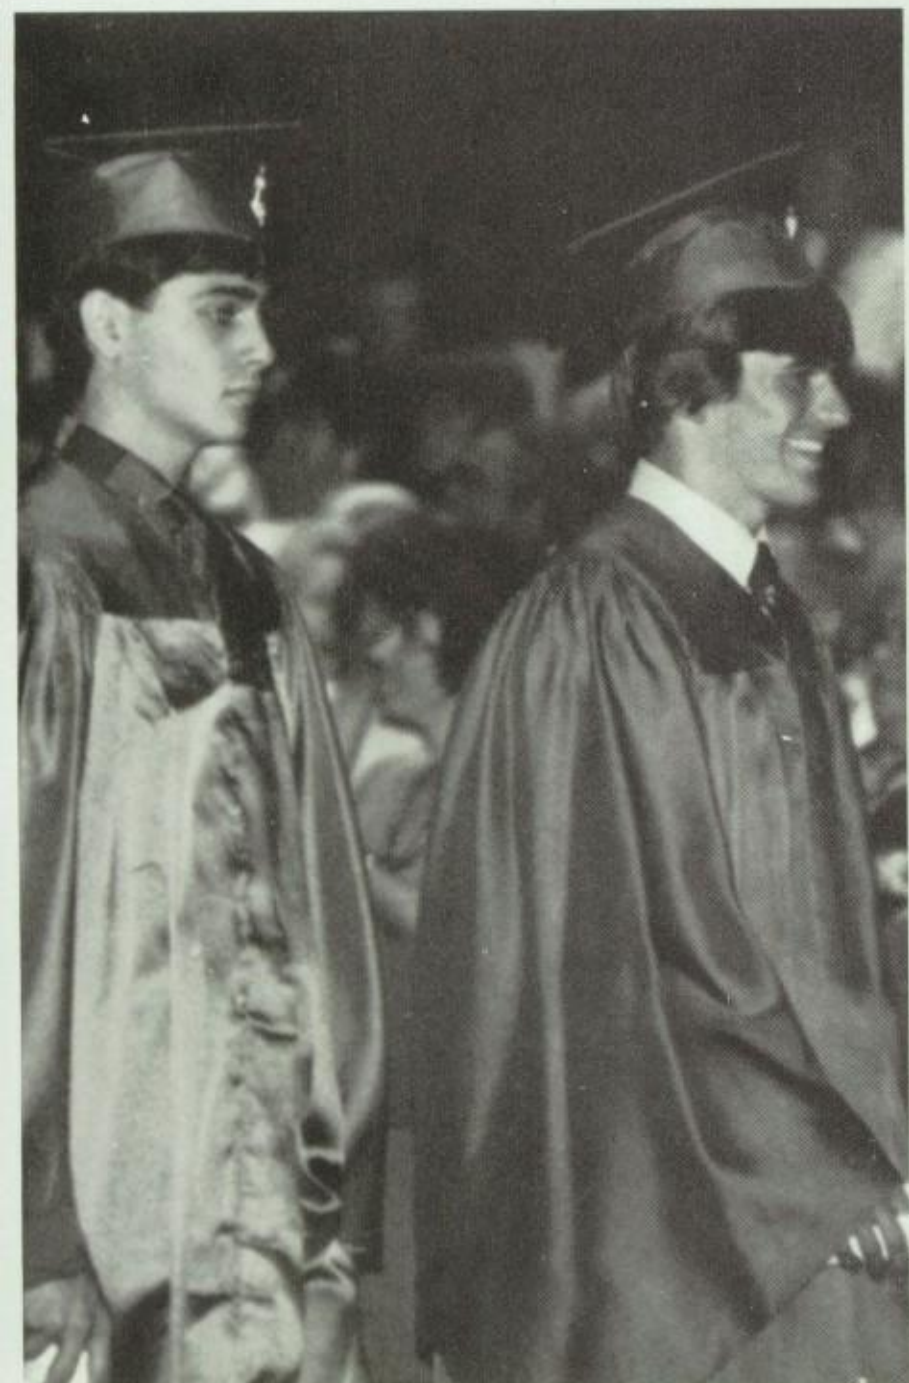

The Graduates

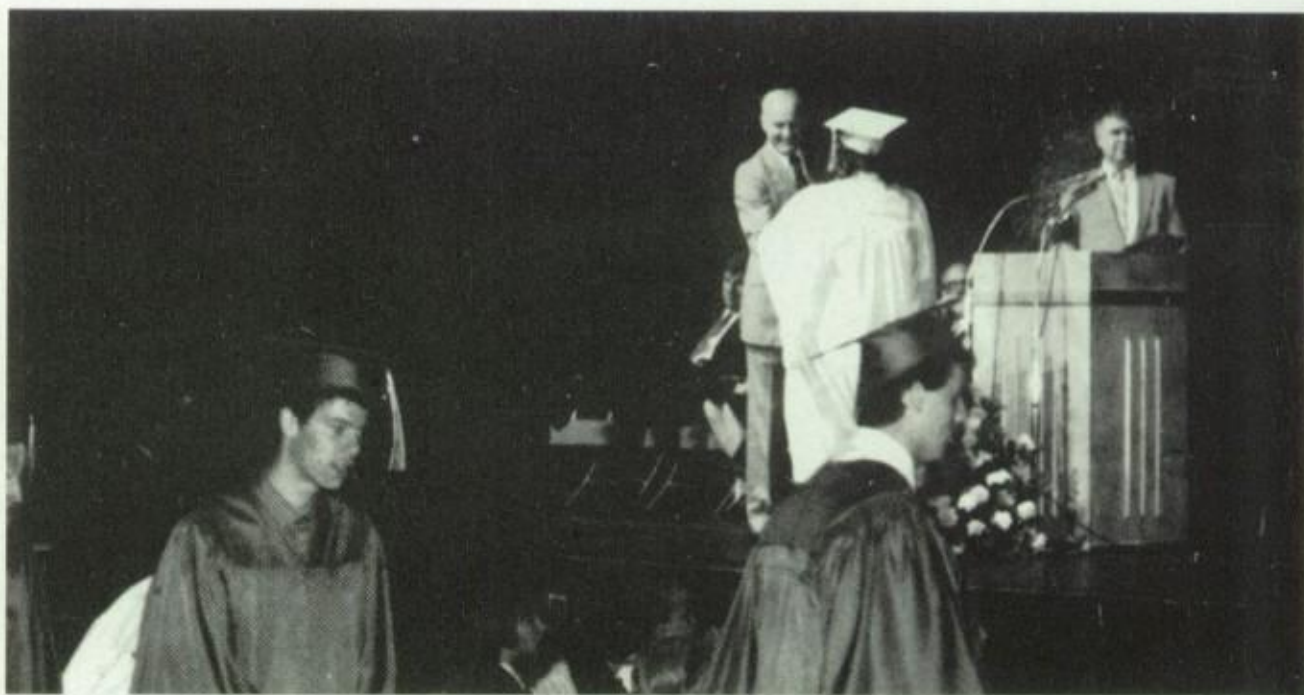

The 99th Commencement Ceremonies of Maumee High School were held Sunday June 9, 1985 at the Masonic Auditorium. Of the 1985 class consisting of 245 members, twenty-three percent received academic honors. This is a record to date. Senior Class President Pat Myers gave an address to his class entitled "Just Another Hour." After commencement the graduates attended an all-night party at the YMCA.

Activities

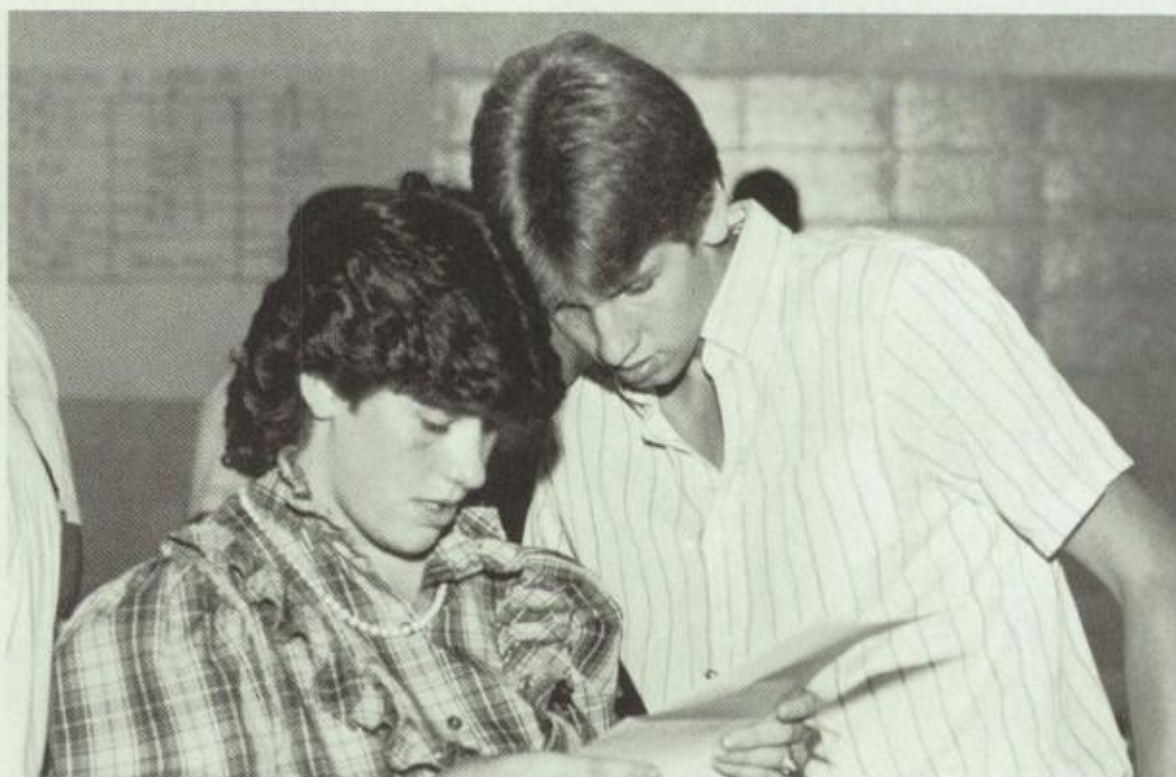

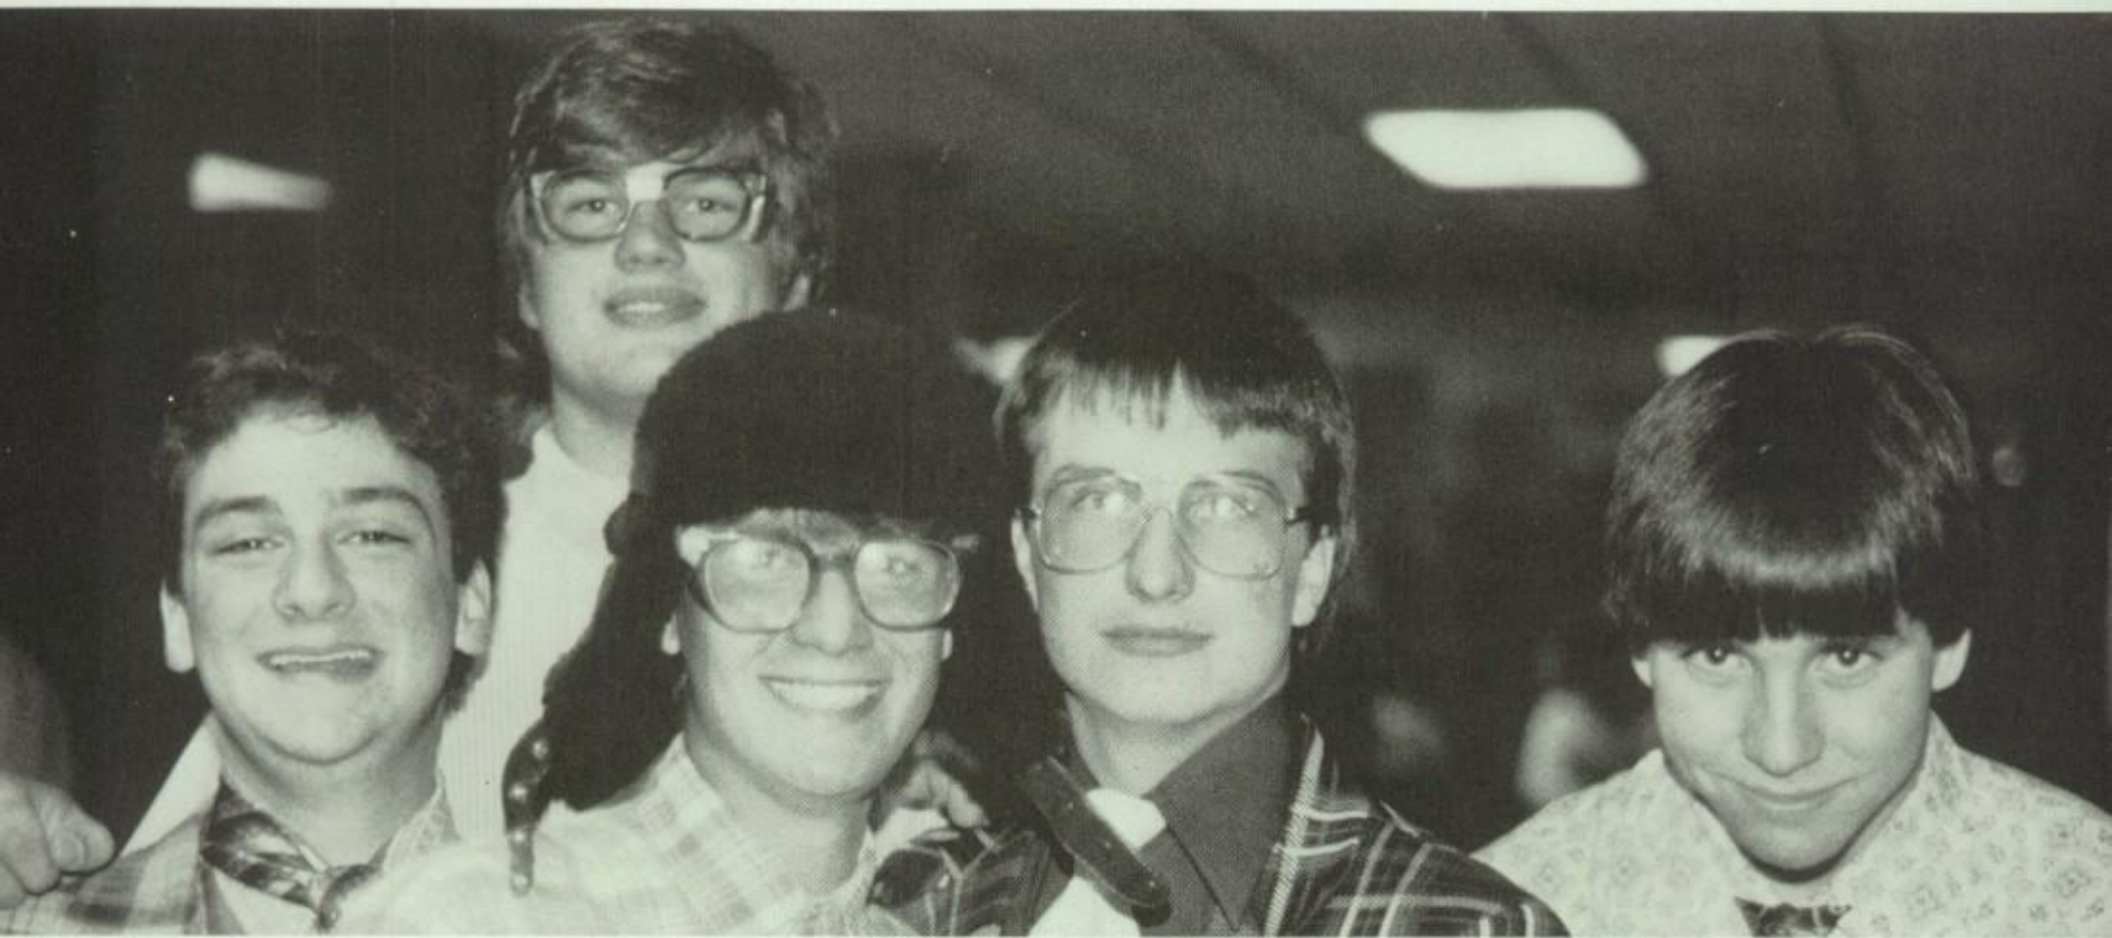

Self-scheduling is basically an opened or closed case. Many of us dread contending with the lines and conflicts. Social Studies appeared to be the most difficult subject to approach. For the most part, this is the first and last time some people actually "cram" during the school year. Students were often tempted to wage war when the Government or World Leaders instructor declared that a vital class was "history." Nevertheless, elation was felt when the last punch card was distributed.

Turkey Trot Turnabout

Wow, does Luke raise a strange breed at his barn. Approximately 150 turkeys were shaking their tail feathers as they succumbed to the platters provided by B.G. Sound. The ladies walked especially proud since they were able to ask their favorite tom. Jimmy Scott gobbled up the King Turkey Award. Meanwhile, the flock cooked for three hours under hot lights and heavy air. Just as the turkey juices really began to flow, the group was shoo'd as the timer ticked 11:00. What is this?! Turkeys are supposed to be roasted not resuscitated on Thanksgiving. Perhaps this lot did not have the right stuffing.

Shakin' Some Rens

Rowdie Reindeer Dance

Maumee High School students broke loose from their reins as Tony Kaiser laid the tracks for the Rowdie Reindeer Dance. Although you could bring your own "dear," many opted to go stag. Mike Bornhorst held his antlers high when he was voted Rowdiest Reindeer. Since the dance was sponsored by the Senior and Junior classes, rates were a buck for the 12th graders and $2.50 for the underclassmen. As expected, this uneven distribution of dough brought down a couple of hooves, but the majority were indifferent about dragging a slightly heavier sleigh.

The theme for this year's dance, "Winter Dreams," seemed to truly inspire all sorts of dreams. Sponsored by the Student Council, the Wintery magic cast its spell on those who attended as well as, perhaps, ole Smokin' Joe, the disc jockey. Although certain mishaps took place between the two groups, the night, as a whole, was a success. The court included: Freshman, Lori Pratt; Sophomore, Angel Hiles; Junior, Sandy Venable; Senior, Ami French, and Penta Rep., Michelle Rodenhauer. The Queen of this "dream" was Chris Gebhart with Tony Willis reigning as King.

Winter Dreams

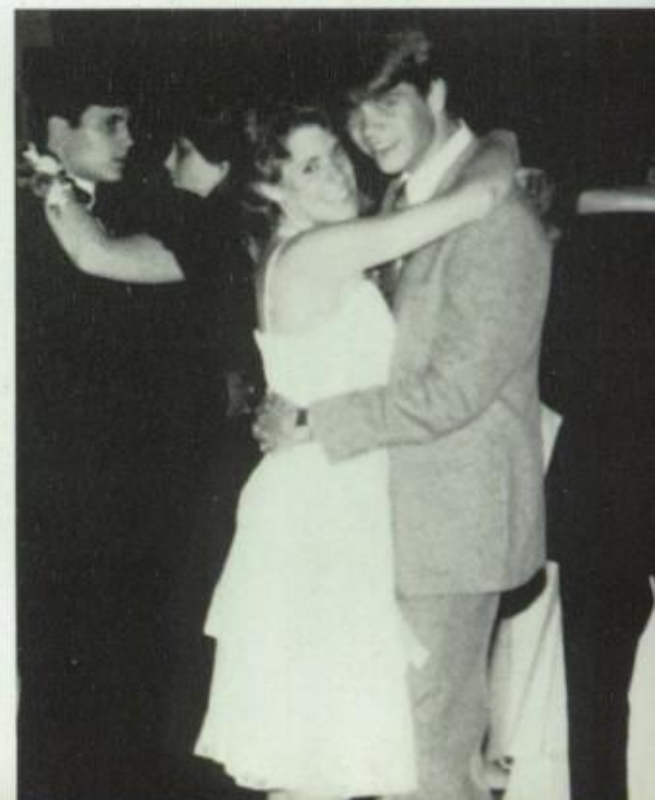

Shamrock Shuffle

On March 16, 1985, three former Maumee students supplied fast-paced jams for the energetic jigging at Luke's Barn. True, the X-CITERZ don't sing Gaelic folksongs or don emerald skin, but their fantastic musical ability makes other musicians green with envy. During intermissions, however, the X-CITERZ managed to supply a bit of modern Irish Culture for their newly acquired fans. Hence, U2's Under a Blood Red Sky sent numerous people onto the floor, ranting along with the powerful tunes. Although fun was had by those with liberal ears, many expressed complaints regarding the absence of slow sets and mainstream music. Nevertheless, John, Doug and Steve were excellent reliefs for the overworked performers such as Madonna, The Time, and Prince.

Tonight's the Night

This was the event that would have evoked the envy of the Ewings, Carringtons, or Quartermaines. On May 11th, the Junior Class transformed the University of Toledo's Student Union into an enchanting ballroom. Handsome suits and lovely gowns added elegance to the special evening. Tony Kaiser provided romantic ballads for the sizzling, slow dances. At the midnight hour, many couples left for phase two of the Prom Drama. Parties and other escapades extended the festivities into dawn. And thus, lengthy preparation produced an extremely exhilarating night.

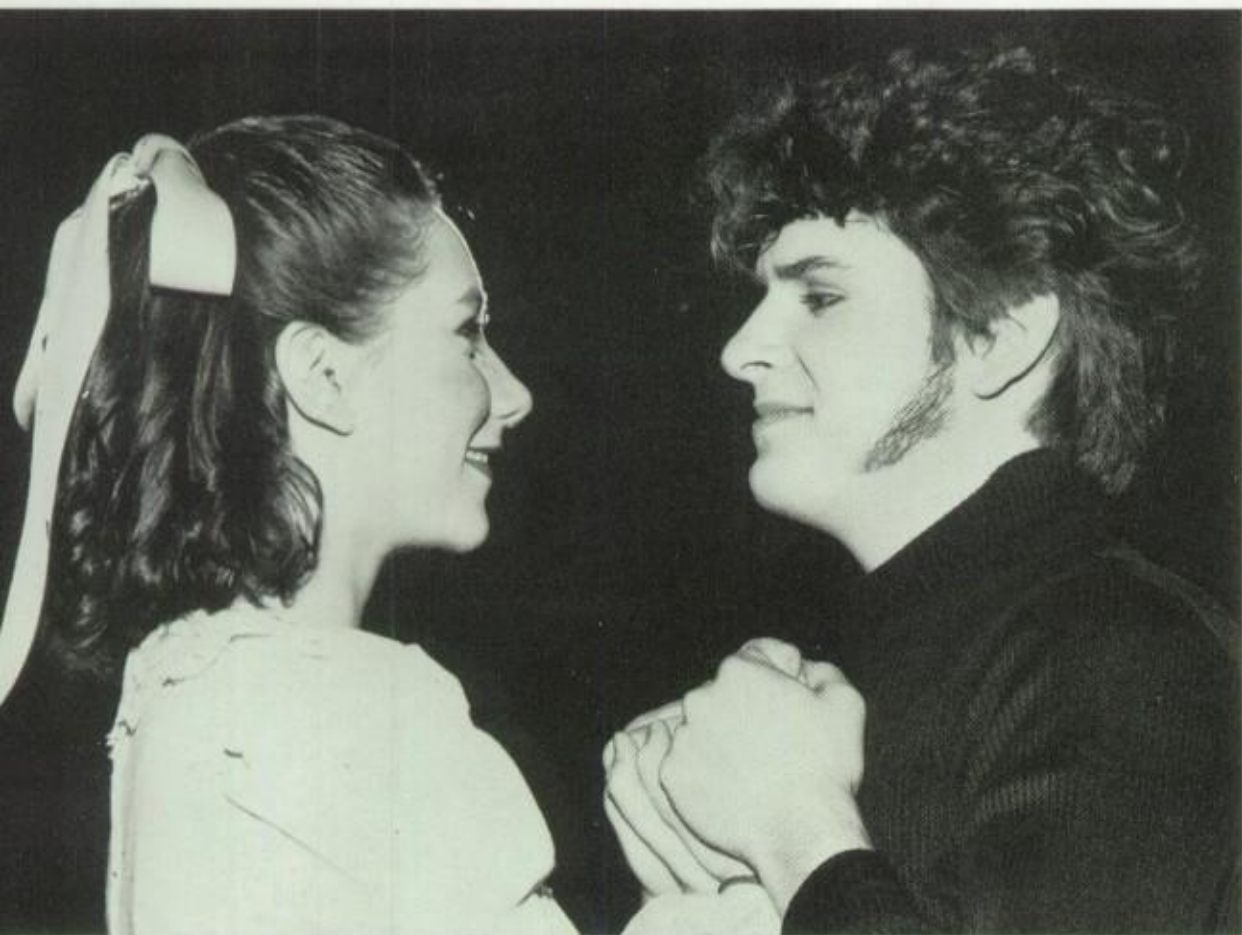

The Importance of Being Earnest

The Drama Club is known for trying new things and this year was no exception. The fall production of Oscar Wilde's classic "The Importance of Being Earnest" was not a ticket booth smash but it gave drama club members a chance to experiment with different acting techniques such as stylized gestures and the mastering of tongue-twisting sentences. The lavish costumes that were rented for the small cast and the beautiful wicker set pieces borrowed from Haney's Windows, Walls and Wicker shop in Maumee gave the show a professional look and feel. As the actors look back on the complex plot they can only try to remember: who was Earnest?

Powderpuff Football

The old adage "Anything boys can do, girls can do better" came true when our "Lady Panthers" took to the field in the annual Powderpuff game. After the many hours of grueling practice, they executed their well-planned strategies taught to them and made their coaches proud. Although the chill in the air was enough to ward off many fans, the proceeds from this game went to the Sunshine Children's Home.

As usual, the Senior-Freshman team opposed the Junior-Sophomore team in a long and hard fought, but nonetheless fun, game. To cheer the teams on, our "cheerleaders" were on hand to hail our ladies and provide a laugh for all. In the end, the Junior-Sophomore players pulled ahead to win an exciting and well-earned victory.

Youth in Education Day

It could be said that next to extracurricular social situations, peer pressure is at its greatest on Youth in Education Day. On May 29, seniors became masters of the books and blackboards at Maumee High School. Chaos? Bedlem? No! The teachers a.k.a. students ruled the school in a very business-like manner. Hence, participants in this activity discovered that detentions and tests are not the only enjoyments teaching affords!

With plenty of snow and good spirits the Ski Club flew down the slopes of Blue Mountain in Canada. The group held their annual candy sale to partly finance the trip — an activity non-members enjoy as much as members. The accommodations at the resort were posh by previous standards, including the use of a swimming pool! The slopes, however, were the major attraction, despite the blizzard-like conditions. The President is Debbie Bing and the club is advised by Mr. Lauber.

Debate

It has been another successful year for the Debate team! The topic was employing poor people in the United States. The debaters changed positions on the issue and the team seemed to benefit by it. There were two undefeated tournaments, 6-0 at Troy, Ohio and 12-0 at Fairmont, Ohio, a tournament that is the largest in the state. The four man team of Jim Parker, Mike Moran, Chris Mabrey and Stacy McDevitt placed second in the district and that led to a third place in the state level competition.

Then it was off to New York City over Thanksgiving for fun, Broadway shows and excitement. The spring musical was "Carousel," which was produced for the first time of a proscenium stage at Gateway Middle School. The annual banquet topped off a great year.

DECA

Distributive Education Clubs of America — DECA. The question many people ask is, what do DECA members do every day in that room? The answer: learning how to run, finance, buy, sell, market, and manage in the complex business world. This year, some of their activities included the penny pitch for needy families at Christmas time, touring Timbers Bowling Alley and Kindle Ford, and Teacher Appreciation Day activities.

Coach of the Year . . .

It's too bad this year had to end for Maumee High School basketball. 1984-85 was certainly good to the Panthers.

Not only did both the girls' and boys' varsity teams win NLL trophies, but they were also unbeaten in league play. And the Panther boys even went one step further by compiling an incredible regular season record of 20-0.

The boys recorded their 20th victory on March 1 before another packed house at Maumee High School, where this time the Delta Panthers fell victim.

Ninety seconds into the game, Bryan Williams sank a lay-up, and from then on, it was all Maumee, as the Panthers took a 20-point lead into the locker room at half-time and outscored their opponent in all four quarters.

Dan McGuire's 22-point total was the game high, and four other Maumee players scored in double figures — Jamie Mercurio (16 points) and Ken Mason, Bryan Williams, and Tony Willis (10 apiece).

At the sound of the final buzzer, excitement again filled the air, for with the 83-58 win, the Maumee Panthers came to realize their accomplishment of a perfect season. And in celebration, they one-by-one snipped down with scissors the victory net until Head Coach

Jim Robinson climbed the ladder and finished it off.

The Panthers' perfect season was the first in Maumee High School history, and their 20 victories set a school record. But even so, there was still more work to be done, as the league champions readied themselves for battle in the Class AAA sectional tournament.

Round one of the sectionals took place on March 5 at Waite High School, where the Panthers faced a team they had beaten twice during the regular season — the Springfield Blue Devils.

Jamie Mercurio helped Maumee make it three straight over the Devils by scoring a game-high 20 points, while Mark Shull and Ken Mason added nine and eight tallies respectively.

The 48-32 victory ran Maumee's winning streak to 21 games, but three days later, it was snapped by the Libbey Cowboys.

The Panthers, in their final appearance of the 1984-85 season, never won a quarter, and at the end of three periods were down, 51-40, before finally succumbing 67-55.

For the second straight game, Jamie Mercurio led his team with 20 points, followed by Bryan Williams (13 points), Ken Mason (10), and Dan McGuire (10).

... Team of the Year

For the first time ever in the history of Maumee High School, the 1984-85 Boys Varsity Basketball Team completed a perfect 20-0 season. Completing the season on March 1, the Panthers became the N.L.L. champions and were ranked 14th in class AAA in Ohio. Through determination, excellence, and skill, the Panthers completed their perfect season and then proceeded to district competition losing in the semi-finals to Libbey. Nevertheless, the Boys Varsity Basketball Team proved its superior ability through its accomplishments during the course of the season. Ken Mason and Dan McGuire were named first team all league and second team all district. Sophomore Jamie Mercurio received honorable mention all league. The 21 winning game streak, in part, can be attributed to the fine leadership afforded to Maumee by senior players:

Ken Mason, Mark Shull, Tony Willis, Brent Welker, and Dave Curtis. Coach Jim Robinson's abilities were also honored as he was the N.L.L. and the Northwest Ohio Coach of the Year. Many congratulations go out to the Boys Varsity Basketball Team and its excellent season.

This year, under Coach Fred Tashenberg, the Boys Junior Varsity Basketball Team finished with a great record. They were 10-4 in the N.L.L. and 13-7 in overall competition, and ranking 3rd in the N.L.L. However, their counterparts had a better season. The Girls Junior Varsity Basketball Team, under the coaching of Michelle Kokinda, finished their season with an excellent record of 11-3 in the N.L.L., and a season record of 17-3. This enabled the girls to finish better than the boys and finish in a 1st place tie in the N.L.L. Both the boys and girls teams worked hard and came out in good standings.

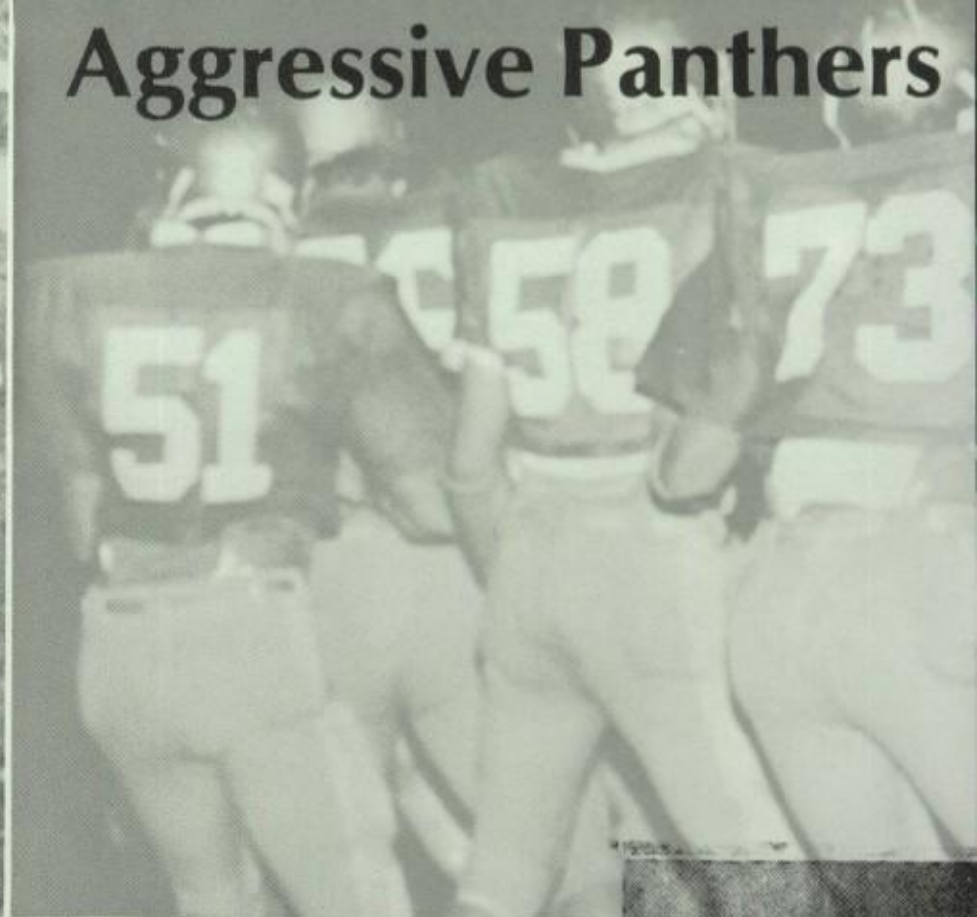

1. Coach Tashenberg gives last minute advice.
2. Brenda Neyhart looks to pass.
3. Matt Myers jumps for the shot.

Dedication

The 1984-85 Reflector is dedicated to Mr. Edward C. Osnowitz, Associate Principal.

Mr. Osnowitz has been at Maumee High School for twelve years. He was graduated from DeVilbiss High School in 1952 and went on to Kent State University to pursue a Bachelor of Science degree. Further education at Eastern Michigan University enabled him to obtain a Master of Arts degree.

With this strong background, Mr. Osnowitz embarked on his career in education. He worked in Warren, Ohio for one year, Sylvania for two years, and at Whiteford in Ottawa Lake, Michigan for six years. In addition, he served as the head football coach at Lake High School for thirteen years.

The varied experiences that Mr. Osnowitz brought with him to Maumee High School made him one of our most cosmopolitan staff members. He was always supportive of the athletic department, the music programs, and the theatre department — with his wardrobe donations — as well as carrying the responsibility of nearly everyone in the school.

Mr. Osnowitz will be furthering his career as Principal at Springfield High School next year. We wish him luck — he will be missed.

Sincerely,
The 1984-85 Reflector Staff.

"Give the People What They Want"

— The Kink

This is the only way to truly sum up this yearbook. In keeping with the unique style of the class of 1985, this book has, like every class, a few rough edges, but nonetheless, it is a book "for the students." It is 4:00 p.m. on June the sixth, the first day of vacation everyone is gone. While pulling all of the disarrayed sections together and glancing back one last time, we feel that there are numerous explanations in order. There is no doubt about it, sometimes you need much more than good intentions to put together a yearbook. "Held together by graphics," the untitled and unofficial theme for this year, soon became an ongoing joke amongst the staff and kept us all unified. This theme, more or less, emphasizes our primary goal: that each individual should feel some sort of challenge when looking at a book like this and the book should allow this individual to make some personal interpretations, this is the main reason for the "uncaptioned" pictures in various sections. More than once we have had some serious doubts and conflicts concerning layouts, copy and deadlines, but as the final and most important deadline approaches, we've all come to really know each other and know who we can really count on in a crisis. Overall, this experience, no doubt the hardest and time consuming one we've encountered thus far, has not only matured us, but made us all realize the potential and creativity we all acquire.

At about this time in this message we would normally name each staff individual personally, but so as not to leave some out, we just thank all of you — you know who you are — and extend our deepest gratitude to you for all of your time, the most precious gift anyone could give.

In closing, we sincerely feel that Mr. Stephens deserves, well, a large pat on the back, not to mention a huge "thank you" for all he has done for us. We will never forget you!

And to our fellow students, a simple thought, we hope this book will be as "unforgettable" as possible.

Thank you.
Carol and Kate.
